Background

Originally established in 1888, New Mexico State University is the State’s land-grant university and is classified as a Carnegie Research University-High Research Activity institution. The College of Business was founded in 1964 and has been accredited since 1973 by AACSB International - The Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business. In addition, the Accounting Programs have been independently accredited since 1993. The College of Business consists of five academic departments offering eight different undergraduate degrees in accounting, economics, finance, general business, information systems, international business, management and marketing. Within these programs, a variety of specializations are offered. Further, the college offers four master degree and three doctoral programs.

Mission

Consistent with the mission of the New Mexico State University, the College of Business serves the educational needs of our diverse population through comprehensive programs of education, research, service and public outreach. We are committed to providing quality education, conducting research activities, publishing relevant information and participating in service activities within the global community as set forth in our core values. In accomplishing our mission, the college embraces necessary goals to provide a quality education from outstanding faculty in order to serve our diverse students and community. These goals for our premier college are set forth in our Strategic Plan. (See also NMSU's Living the Vision.)
